

Session 5-1

General Conclusion of a Leader

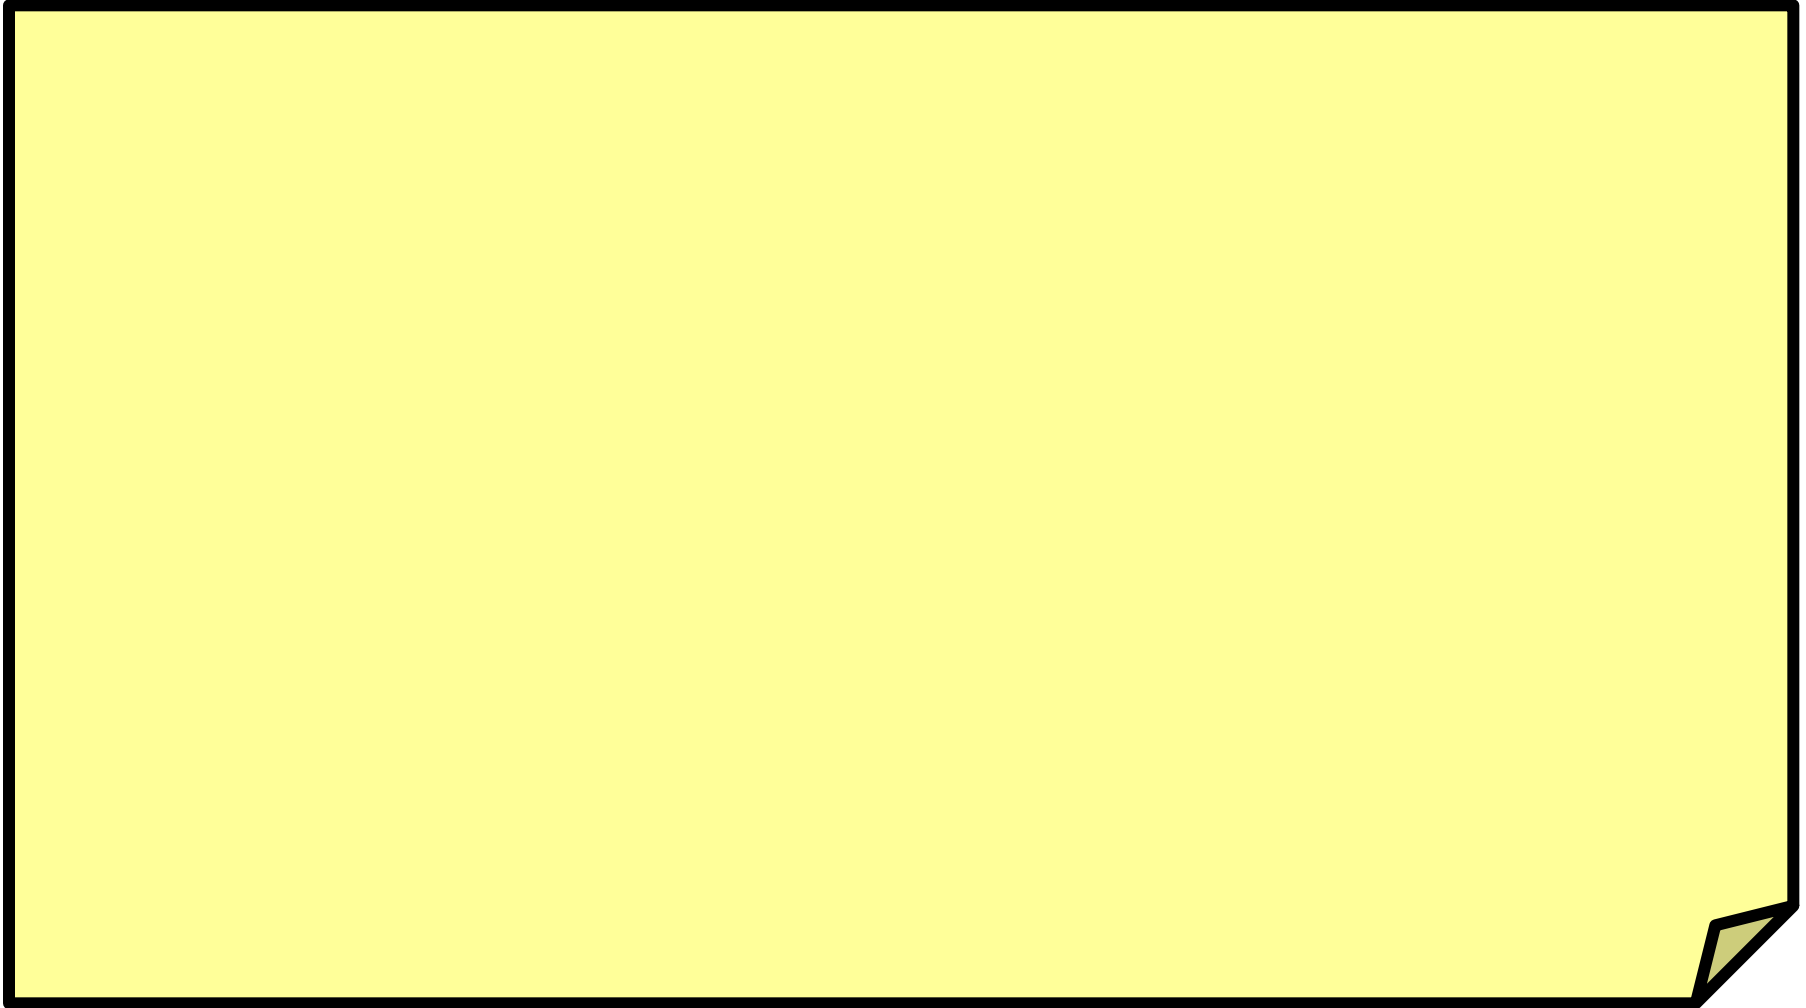

General Conclusions of a Leader

1. Happy home life
2. Education: Above the average of general population
3. Full advantage of varied educational opportunities
4. Active participant & leader in his/her career
5. Religious and consciousness in his/her approach to work.

General Conclusions of a Leader

6. Good health
7. High interest in human relation
8. Super mental analytical ability
9. Forceful & Intense
10. Ambitious
11. High intuition = Σ (individual experience)
12. Optimistic View

Session 5-1 Summary

Session 5-2

Ten Commandments of Leadership

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders

– for parents

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders – for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders – for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader

2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient.

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders – for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader
2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient

3. Thou shalt not compare, even whilst complimenting

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders – for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader
2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient
3. Thou shalt not compare, even whilst complimenting

4. Thou shalt encourage thy children when they fail in big events more than when they succeed in small matters.

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders – for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader
2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient
3. Thou shalt not compare, even whilst complimenting
4. Thou shalt encourage thy children when they fail in big events more than when they succeed in small matters.

5. Thou shalt train thy children of the freedom of choice, the pain of decision, and the responsibility of the results.

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders

– for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader
2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient
3. Thou shalt not compare, even whilst complimenting
4. Thou shalt encourage thy children when they fail in big events more than when they succeed in small matters.
5. Thou shalt train thy children of the freedom of choice, the pain of decision, and the responsibility of the results.

6. Thou shalt teach thy children not to covet the prize of men.

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders

– for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader
2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient
3. Thou shalt not compare, even whilst complimenting
4. Thou shalt encourage thy children when they fail in big events more than when they succeed in small matters.
5. Thou shalt train thy children of the freedom of choice, the pain of decision, and the responsibility of the results.
6. Thou shalt teach thy children not to covet the prize of men.

7. Thou shalt emphasize creativity as the most important trait of a leader.

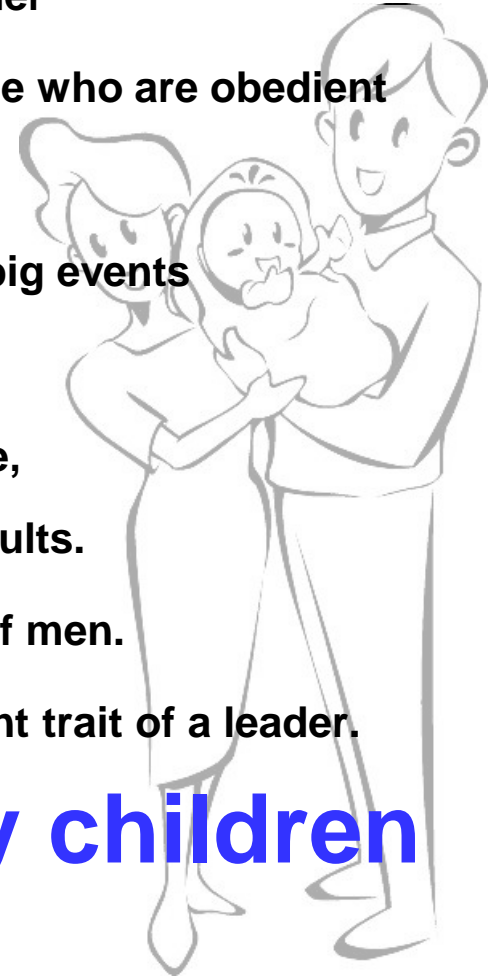

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders

– for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader
2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient
3. Thou shalt not compare, even whilst complimenting
4. Thou shalt encourage thy children when they fail in big events more than when they succeed in small matters.
5. Thou shalt train thy children of the freedom of choice, the pain of decision, and the responsibility of the results.
6. Thou shalt teach thy children not to covet the prize of men.
7. Thou shalt emphasize creativity as the most important trait of a leader.

8. Thou shalt prepare thy children to bear loneliness.

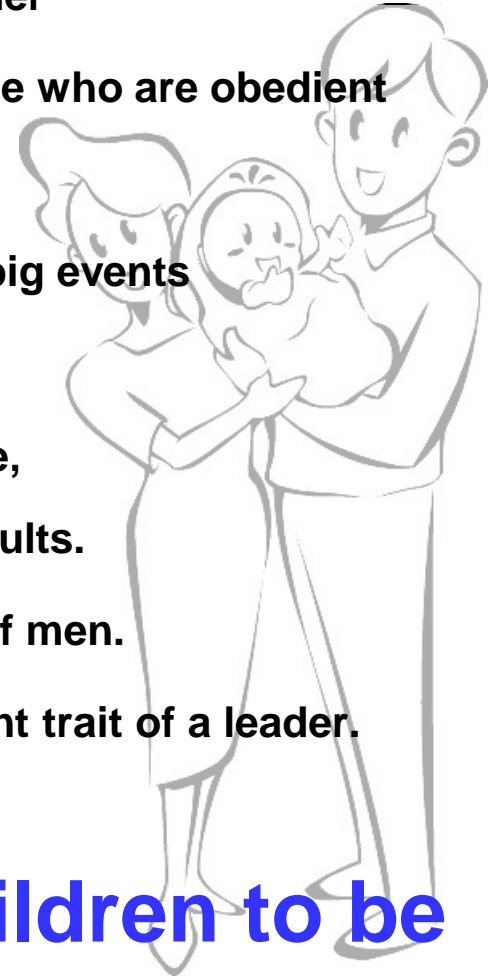

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders

– for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader
2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient
3. Thou shalt not compare, even whilst complimenting
4. Thou shalt encourage thy children when they fail in big events more than when they succeed in small matters.
5. Thou shalt train thy children of the freedom of choice, the pain of decision, and the responsibility of the results.
6. Thou shalt teach thy children not to covet the prize of men.
7. Thou shalt emphasize creativity as the most important trait of a leader.
8. Thou shalt prepare thy children to bear loneliness.

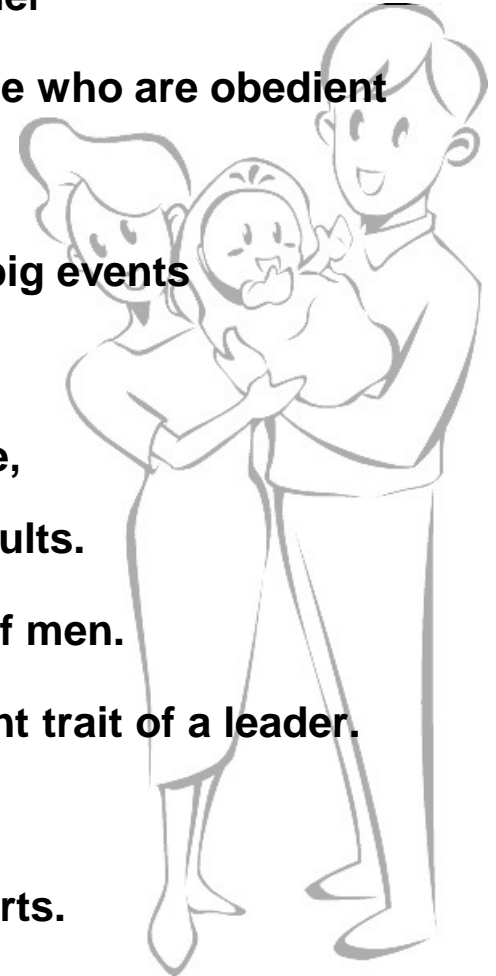

9. Thou shalt remind thy children to be world best experts.

TEN COMMANDMENTS of Cultivating World Leaders

– for parents

1. Thou shalt respect thy children, as thou would a leader
2. Thou shalt support those who are stubborn, not those who are obedient
3. Thou shalt not compare, even whilst complimenting
4. Thou shalt encourage thy children when they fail in big events more than when they succeed in small matters.
5. Thou shalt train thy children of the freedom of choice, the pain of decision, and the responsibility of the results.
6. Thou shalt teach thy children not to covet the prize of men.
7. Thou shalt emphasize creativity as the most important trait of a leader.
8. Thou shalt prepare thy children to bear loneliness.
9. Thou shalt remind thy children to be world best experts.
- 10. Thou shalt be thy children's final resort

Session 5-2 Summary

